

Motherhood In Fiction

The Perfect Mother by Aimee Molloy

In a group of new moms one of the babies is abducted, prompting them to go to increasingly risky lengths to help the traumatized mother.

That Kind Of Mother by Rumaan Alam

Rebecca, a white woman, asks a kind black woman, Priscilla, to become her family's nanny, which changes her perspective about her own life of privilege.

Fierce Kingdom by Gin Phillips

Trapped in a closed zoo, a woman and her four-year-old son try to stay ahead of a dangerous adversary who tests the limits of the mother-child bond.

Other People's Houses by Abbi Waxman

A carpool mom resolves to stay uninvolved in gossip only to find herself navigating a minefield when she spots a neighbor having an extramarital affair.

Motherhood by Sheila Heti

In her late thirties, the narrator considers whether she will have a child. With the influence of her peers and partner, she struggles to make a wise and moral choice.

Lucky Boy by Shanthi Sekaran

A battle ensues between an undocumented single mother and an American woman who cannot have children when her son is placed in the latter's care.

The Handmaid's Tale by Margaret Atwood

Life in the former United States is now a theocracy with a sharply declining birthrate. Those women who can give birth to children endure brutal state control.

Eleven Hours by Pamela Erens

A young woman arrives at a hospital ready to go into labor, while the nurse that assists her is pregnant herself.

Want more?

Speak to us at the Adult Services desk or request a personalized book list from Your Next Great Read!